Dear Internet Friend,

It's embarrassing for me to admit this now, but I have been making a very nice income working from home for quite a while now - and keeping it secret from most of the people who know me. Until...

I was taking the trash out not long ago, and my neighbor Jessica stopped me at the curb.

"I have to ask you," Jessica said, looking at her feet, "what the heck do you do for a living?"

I shrugged. It's a question I avoid - not because what I do is wrong or anything, but most people either don't understand it or they just flat-out don't believe it.

"No, really," Jessica said. She looked up. "What do you do? Did you win the lottery? Or did you author a famous book or something?"

I laughed and asked her why she would say such a thing. And then she told me something that made me decide to put up this web page...

She said, "I don't want to be nosey, but here's the deal... I get up every day and shower and put on a dress and leave my family to go to work for a living. I come home after dark, I'm dead tired, and I just fall onto the couch and go to sleep in front of the TV."

I nodded. Jessica was getting worked up.

"You, on the other hand," she said as she pointed at me, "are home when I leave in the morning. You're home when I get back from work. You have a nice house, a nice car... and as far as I can tell you don't even have a job. So I want to know how you do it!"

Immediately I felt sorry for Jessica. Here I had been thinking that she was just nosey - and the truth was, she's just desperate to find a way out of the 9-to5 trap. She wanted to be free from work-slavery.

So I told her exactly what I'm about to tell you - all about the best-kept "secret job" I know of.
