

Title:

Shirts: White Collars, Blue Collars, and others

Word Count:

697

Summary:

Custom Made shirt & custom Made suits are looks different then designer, because designer will be able to design a suit for you but custom made tailor will be tailoring you which give you perfect & extra ordinary look.

Keywords:

La Rukico Tailors, custom tailor of New York -custom shirts, suits, blazers, tuxedos, sports jacket, cufflinks, blazer buttons, New York's leading custom tailor, custom suits, shirts, blazers, tuxedo, sports jacket and top coats for men and women.

Article Body:

Shirts: White Collars, Blue Collars, and others…

 by:- Luke Mayes

If you're unsure about what color your collar should be - the short answer is to have options. Your choice of color is one of the most important considerations when choosing the style of your business shirt collar.

White Collars

For a white shirt, the collar should always be white and made from the same fabric as the rest of the shirt. The only exception to this rule is the tuxedo shirt which may incorporate another white (textured) fabric for the shirt front (bib) and the cuffs.

The white shirt was previously a uniform requirement at IMB and a plain white shirt still communicates efficiency, aptitude, and professionalism.

For stripes, checks and solid colors, Gordon Gecko's contrast white collar is still a great look on Wall Street. A contrast white collar (with white cuffs) is all about the big city, big deals, and big money. If you're visiting a big city from a smaller city, a contrast white collar can communicate that you're a genuine player and not intimidated by the big smoke.

If, on the other hand, you're visiting a smaller city from New York, the contrast white collar can be a big turn off to blue collar management. Gecko's, "Greed is good," mantra appeals to some, but not to all. You don't want to come across as a slick, big city executive when you're selling farming machinery in Arkansas.

Blue Collars

When dealing with manufacturing operations as well as businesses in smaller communities, a blue shirt (with a matching collar) is a staple ingredient in a businessman's wardrobe.

Unlike the white shirt which often represents administrative efficiency, the blue collared shirt represents a connection with physical work, engineering, and problem solving. When visiting agricultural sites, a button down blue collar shirt (always worn with a single breasted jacket) conveys both respect and discretion – with or without a tie.

For those business situations that require your multi-faceted understanding of finance, administration, manufacturing, and sales, a light blue shirt will fit the bill.

Others

There are a myriad plaids, stripes, checks, dots, weaves, and color combinations to choose from when you're looking for a business shirt. If you don't usually wear a tie, compliment a solid jacket (or suit) with a bright, colorful shirt. If you wear ties, ensure that your tie and shirt do not compete for attention. An easy rule of thumb is to wear plainer shirts with busy ties and plainer ties with busy shirts.

Unless you're latest recording has just gone platinum, be cautious of combining a busy suit, with a busy shirt, and a busy tie. That being said, if you're confident in your own good taste, mix it up and show the world who you are. The choice of your collar color is sure to speak volumes about your personal style.

Coming soon:

- Collar width, length, and spread – framing different faces
- Wingtip (or Wing) collars and other black tie options

Visit our site : www.tailor.com

About the Writer –

Luke Mayes is a textile designer, an independent filmmaker (Red Shift director), and a freelance writer. His work has been published in Style, Apparel, Corporate Wardrobe, Cigar Aficionado, For The Groom, Playboy, and GQ.